Revised 10-30-20

Since chemical agents are irritating to the eyes, nose and skin, officers using a chemical agent will ensure that persons exposed to such agents receive adequate first aid treatment at the scene as soon as practical. ~~Generally, flushing the exposed areas of the body with water will constitute adequate treatment. Severe exposure may require gentle but copious amounts of water. Persons with highly sensitive skin may experience mild burns and first aid treatment by paramedics, fire department personnel or medical facility personnel may be required. If a person is wearing contact lenses, the subject or medical personnel should remove the lenses as soon as possible.~~ Officers shall administer first aid by:

- Seating the subject or other person(s) exposed to chemical agent in an upright position (or other appropriate position dependent on circumstances).
- Flushing the affected person's eyes with clean water and ventilating with fresh air.
- Requesting on-scene medical assessment by emergency medical personnel as soon as practical, prior to any transportation.
- Maintaining direct visual observation of any exposed person(s) until they have been medically assessed at the scene.
- When booking subjects exposed to chemical agents, jail personnel will be advised of this fact to prevent contamination of other jail occupants or custodial personnel.
