

PRESS RELEASE
FROM:
Cops Care Cancer Foundation
2005 Fantasy Flight

The Cops Care Cancer Foundation has partnered up with NASA Ames and YAHOO to put on the annual Fantasy Flight. Fantasy Flight is a completely free event for Bay Area families who have a child that is stricken with cancer or life threatening disease. The entire family is invited to the San Jose Police Department Air Support Unit located on Moffett Field. The helicopter hangar has been converted into the North Pole hosting food, games, special guests, Magicians, balloon artists, jugglers and Police displays. Santa's sleigh will break down but he will be rescued and brought to the children via a SJPD helicopter.

This event is completely free for the families and is completely funded by the Cops Care Cancer Foundation and their corporate sponsors. (Assembly member Alberto Torrico, YAHOO, NASA Ames, PG&E, Kaiser and the Santa Clara County Sheriff's Dept just to name a few) In addition to corporate sponsors, Bay area Police Officers teamed up with local residents to participate in several fundraisers to help raise money for this event. Along with having a magical care free day, each child will receive a gift and their families will receive extra money for the holidays and a gift card to purchase food for a Christmas dinner.

If interested in attending, please contact Ofc. Brian Simuro at the below number to gain security clearance.

Date: December 10th 2005

Staging Time: 12:45PM

Event Time: 1:30PM

Staging Location: YAHOO 701 1st Ave. Sunnyvale (Cross of Mathilda)

Event Location: San Jose Police Air Support Unit, Moffett Field (NASA Ames)

Contact Info: Ofc. Brian Simuro, President/Founder
Cops Care Cancer Foundation
www.CopsCareCancerFoundation.org
408-406-1445 (Cell #)